COMMUNICATIONS COMMITTEE BULLETIN
November 10, 2012

Please join us in welcoming Paul Lipscomb to our staff as a temporary employee. Over the next few months, Paul will be acting as our Change Management Coordinator; with his expertise as an experienced Nonprofit Association of Oregon consultant and the organization's support, he will work to determine and develop a management structure that will help Free Geek thrive as an effective and sustainable organization. Paul will report directly to the Board.

Not only will Paul work closely with the Board throughout this transition, his work will touch all of Free Geek's working parts. He will be meeting with the Communications Committee regularly, in addition to getting to know the staff and Free Geek as a whole. Your input during this time is extremely valuable, and Paul understands the desire for transparency.

Please give him your full and timely cooperation as requested. The quality of his work depends on it. If you ever have any questions or concerns about his performance, the Communications Committee is tasked with resolving them through the appropriate channels.

In next week's bulletin, along with other news, we will share some biographical information about Paul.

Sincerely,
Your Communications Committee
