COMMUNICATIONS COMMITTEE BULLETIN
November 17, 2012

What happened this week?

--Consultant Paul Lipscomb began intensive on-site work.

--The Board met on Wednesday evening and, among other business, discussed a couple things that will impact the work and timing of the reorganization initiative.

What kind of things?

--The Board recognized that they need to develop more clarity around Free Geek's vision and core values at the same time as our new structure, because "form follows function." This vision and values work cannot replace a more comprehensive strategic planning process, but it will help ensure that our new structure will be aligned with that process and the resulting strategic plan.

--The Board remains committed to having the reorganization plan completed by the end of the year. However, the reality of Paul L.'s schedule during the holiday season means that hiring people into the new manager positions will not be finished before the end of January.

Any more biographical information available about Paul L.?

--Technical difficulties, but yes, it is still coming!

Sincerely,
Your Communications Committee

--
